Título IX

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 is a federal civil rights law that prohibits sex discrimination in education programs and activities. It is applicable in public and private elementary and secondary schools, school districts, educational institutions, and universities that receive federal funds. Under Title IX, sex discrimination can include sexual violence, assault, and harassment. This Law protects all students regardless of the sex of the person who commits the assault or the victim. All students are protected by Title IX regardless of disability, nationality, immigration status, sexual orientation, or sexual identity.

Universidad Ana G. Méndez (UAGM), Gurabo Campus has a Title IX Coordinator as the contact person who addresses all discrimination complaints based on sex that arise within the university community. If you have doubts regarding the provisions of Title IX, you should contact Juanita Cruz Vega, Dean of Students. Her office is in the Integrated Services Center (CISE). In addition, you can call 787- 743-7979, ext. 9-4155 or email ut_jcruz@uagm.edu.

UAGM does not exclude from participation, nor does it deny benefits, nor does it discriminate against any student on the basis of age, race, color, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, nationality, impediment, social status, political affiliation, political or religious ideas or for being a victim or being perceived as a victim of domestic violence, sexual assault or stalking or for being a military, ex-military, serve, or have served in the United States Armed Forces or for holding the status of veteran or any other category protected by law.

For more information about your rights, or if you believe the University has violated federal law, you can call the U.S. Department of Education, Office for Civil Rights, at 1-800-421-3481 or send a message to ocr@ed.gov. If you want to file a complaint online, you can do so at: <http://www.ed.gov/ocr/complaintintro.html>.
